

BEYOND PHOTOGRAPHY

The Sensorium Arts Festival in Goa traced the intersection between photography and other media. The new festival received a good response from the art fraternity as well as the common public

Farrokh Chothia

Anusha Yadav

Going by the good response it received, you would be forgiven to think that Sensorium is a recurring feature on the Goan cultural landscape. The new arts festival, launched on December 6, 2014, will end on the 5th of this month. Being organised at the Sunaparanta Goa Centre for the Arts in Altinho, Panjim, its popularity perhaps could be linked to its innovative theme:

tracing the intersection between photography and other media like literature, cinema and installation art.

Directed by Prashant Panjiar, founder of the Delhi Photo Festival and writer and novelist Siddharth Dhanvant Shanghvi, Sensorium is privately supported by Raj and Dipti Salgaocar, patrons of Sunaparanta.